

LIGHTNING KILLS HIGH PRICED JENNET

Lady Limestone Struck Down on Farm of I. S. Tevis—M. B. Crowe
Stunned in Storm Thursday

Lightning has been playing havoc in this part of the state in the heavy storms which have been raging almost daily for the past week or so.

One of the severest losses as a result of storms was the killing of the celebrated jennet Lady Limestone, on the farm of her owner, Shelby Tevis in the Shelby City neighborhood Thursday. The jennet was said to have been the highest priced animal of her kind ever sold in Kentucky. Mr. Tevis buying her a few years ago for the reputed sum of $1,200. She had recently foaled a very handsome jack colt, which promises to be a world beater. The colt was standing by her side but was uninjured.

Mr. M. B. Crowe, also of the Shelby City section, received a severe shock from lightning Thursday afternoon as he drove from Danville to his home. He was just outside the confines of Shelby City, when the storm came up. A flash of lightning struck a large elm tree on the side of the road, in front of the home of Mrs. F. T. Burke. The horse he was driving was knocked to its knees, and Mr. Crowe was thrown out of the seat of the buggy and into the led. He was badly stunned, but soon recovered himself, and was able to drive home. He felt the effects of the shock very severely that day, but was much better Friday.

Lightning struck a tree on the place of Mr. R. H. Crowe and killed three lambs Thursday. Several farm workmen were standing in the door of a barn, while the storm was in progress, and saw the lambs killed.

Grinstead, of the M. E. Church, South. The bride is a daughter of Mr. R. F. Johnson, of East London, and is one of London's prettiest young ladies, possessing a charm of manner which has endeared her to a large and ever-increasing circle of friends. Mr. Bibb is a splendid young man, who came here from Stanford some months ago to accept a position as head clerk in the Louisville Store. He is one of the best retail clerks in London, and has many friends here. The happy young couple are making their home temporarily with the bride's parents. They have the best wishes of all for a long and happy life.

Butler—Dayton.

Miss Carrie Vivian Butler and Mr. J. L. Dayton, surprised their many friends by driving over to Hustonville July 4th and being joined in the holy bonds of matrimony at the home of Rev. W. S. REPUBLICAN PAPER

May Be Started in Old I. J. Building Above Bank.

The building above the Lincoln County National Bank, which was occupied for so many years by the Interior Journal, was sold at public auction Monday to A. B. Florence, acting, it is reported for a number of republicans, who it is rumored plan starting a republican paper here, for campaign purposes this fall. The figure at which the building was knocked down was $1,500. The building has been owned by Col. W. P. Walton, of Louisville for years. It is understood that several prominent republicans are soliciting stock subscriptions for the paper.

There have been several papers of this kind started within the past half century and the I. J. has lived to see them all dead and decently buried, and it will probably print the obituary of any other that may be started here.

The Knights of Pythias were the contending bidders for the big loft which would make an ideal club room or addition to their lodge rooms but the figure went a little high to suit them, it is said.

Considerable opposition will be found to the operation of another printing office, it is said, on the part of the officials of the Lincoln County National Bank, who suffered in patience for many years while the I. J.'s engines were bumping and pounding above, but who will not be inclined, it is believed, to view with such equanimity the operation again of such a nuisance over them.

CENTRAL KENTUCKY MERCHANTS ORGANIZE

Delightful Day Spent at Graham Springs, Harrodsburg—Must Organize Here.

Messrs. William Severance, J. F. Cummins, Cyrus Gover, G. L. Penny, W. L. McCarty, H. R. Saufley and Shelton Saufley represented Stanford at a meeting of over a hundred of the retail merchants of central Kentucky at Harrodsburg Tuesday, when the Central Kentucky Retail Merchants' Association was organized. A delightful day was spent at Graham Springs.

The following towns were represented: Shelbyville, Lawrenceburg, Versailles, Eminence, Danville, Stanford, Lancaster, Lebanon, Paris, Springfield, Georgetown, Carrollton, Owen, Pleasureville, New Castle, Salvisa, Burgin and Atoka.

The purpose of the convention was the organization of the Central Kentucky Retail Merchants' Association, the call having been made by the retailers of Harrodsburg. The visiting merchants were entertained at luncheon at the Graham Springs Hotel, and after lunch the convention was called to order in the hotel park. Guy Wiseman, of Danville, was elected temporary chairman, and William Severance, of Stanford, temporary secretary. Col. Ben Lee Hardin welcomed the visitors.

Several inspiring addresses were made, the tenor of which was the necessity of the local merchants standing together and organizing for the betterment and improvement of home town conditions.

It is proposed to organize associations or commercial clubs in each city which is affiliating with this progressive movement. The merchants and business men of Stanford will probably be called together at an early date by Mr. Severance who is the vice president for Lincoln county of the association, and steps be taken at once, to put a live organization to work here.

LONDON POSTMASTER

Has No Connection With Newspaper
There—Citizens Defend Him.

London, Ky., July 11.—Lee B. McHargue, who was deposed as postmaster at London, because of an editorial in the Mountain Echo, criticizing the manner in which President Taft's nomination was secured, disclaims any connection with the Mountain Echo since September 1910 and has proof in the form of affidavits by J. W. Stevenson, editor of that paper, George Gildes, a printer, and Don C. Edwards. About 100 citizens of London telegraphed to President Taft a petition that the order removing Mr. McHargue be reconsidered. The affidavits will be forwarded.

The petition was as follows: "We, the undersigned citizens of London, Ky., most respectfully request you to reconsider the order removing Lee B. McHargue as postmaster of this city. We feel that you have been misinformed in this matter and a great injustice will be done a splendid official and a worthy citizen if this order is not reconsidered. We request that he be given an opportunity to be heard in these charges, and not arbitrarily cut off from any defense. Affidavits are on the way, showing conclusively Mr. Hargue's disconnection from the Mountain Echo nearly two years ago."

Copies also were sent Senator Bradley and the Postmaster General.

The removal of Mr. McHargue was peremptory, on charges having been filed against him. His dismissal was briefly ordered in a letter.

ATTRACTIVE LYCEUM COURSE THIS SEASON

Stanford Lyceum Club Arranges To Again Offer Five High Class
Entertainments.

Notwithstanding the fact that the promoters of the Lyceum Course of attractions in Stanford last season, did not make a cent on the venture, they have decided to try the enterprise again this coming season, and provide the people of this city and surrounding territory with another program of high class entertainments. Arrangements have been concluded for the presentation of a five-course program by the Redpath Bureau, of Chicago, which furnished so many delightful entertainments last year.

Believing that the patrons of their course will appreciate a musical number more than a lecture, and profiting by their experience with the lecturer of last season, Hon. Champ Clark, who cost more than the rest of the course combined, the promoters have decided to eliminate the lecture number and offer a musical event instead. Of the five numbers which will be presented during the season, four will be musical and sketch numbers and the fifth will be a magician who is said to exceed in cleverness the great Reno seen here last season, if that were possible.

Among the attractions which will be seen here will be the Boyds, a versatile company in songs, instrumental music and humorous sketches the Fraternity Club, of Chicago, in a salmagundi of college life, and furnishing a program of melody, song and story set to the "trill of the mandolin, the twang of the banjo and the rhythm of the guitar." Then the Boston Lyrics, in a delightfully varied program of vocal selections, cornet solos, trombone solos, cartoons, monologues and humorous skits, are guaranteed to please everyone. The management thought itself fortunate to secure a return engagement of the Musical Favorites, who pleased everyone so well last season. This was one of the most delightful musical numbers furnished on the course, and as they come with a new program, everyone who heard them before will want that pleasure again. The magician who will be on the course this year will be Laurant, the Man of Many Mysteries, and to say that he classes with Reno is sufficient to make him a great drawing card.

The prices for season tickets this year will be the same as last season, $2.50 and $2, and those who secure their tickets first will have the privilege of making choice of reserved seats for the entire course. The Stanford Lyceum Club believes that it has secured a course which will appeal to all music lovers, or those who enjoy an evening of delightful high class entertainment.

NEW GAME LAW

Now in Effect and Hunters Must All Get License

The new hunter's license law went into effect last week. To get a license, the would-be hunter gives his age, height, weight and color of his hair and then he must pay $1 for a slip of paper showing that he has the right to hunt in the State. The new law requires every hunter who wanders afield to have a license, and attaches a penalty of $50 for the transfer of it. The money accumulated in this way is to be spent in the propagation of fish and the protection of game of all kinds. The license must always be with the hunter who owns it.

The first benefit of the new fish and game law is expected to be the restocking of Kentucky streams with fish by the Government Executive Agent J. Quincy Ward, of Paris, in correspondence with people along all the streams in the State, collecting information as to just what kind of fish is wanted in each section. The Government has never heretofore given Kentucky her quota of fish, because there was no protection for them; but the commission hopes to have three trains of fish early in the fall for distribution. Local fishermen will make an effort to secure a supply for Dix River.

When the game wardens are chosen the merit system will be applied, and a half dozen or so will be retained on the staff to be sent wherever there is particular need of special service. These men will receive expenses and extra compensation, and will be chosen from among those who display especial aptitude for the work.

Candidates for magistrate are getting thick as fleas and are running on every conceivable platform that can be imagined. No doubt the primary will be some relief, but not until then will their day-and-night importunities be in anywise diminished. The magistrate needed by this district, and now is our chance, is one who will make his presence felt and can always have the courage to demand that our district shall have a fair share and an equal show. No right thinking citizen will fail to see that we are very badly left in the mud. Of the 180 miles of turnpike in Lincoln county, only 18 miles—just a tenth, are found in Crab Orchard Magisterial district.

Mercer Man in Mighty Bad.

Devine, a farmer, aged about fifty-five, living in the west end of Mercer county, is in jail at Harrodsburg under serious charges preferred by the local authorities, which involve Devine with criminal and inhuman treatment of his two daughters, aged twenty-two and sixteen. There was considerable talk at Harrodsburg for a while of doing Devine bodily harm if not wreaking justice on him without the aid of the courts, but it has died down, and he is in jail awaiting the action of the authorities. Devine is a well-to-do farmer and has a wife and several children.

Notwithstanding the fact that lightning in the afternoon, burned out a transformer, and made the use of oil lamps necessary, a good sized crowd heard his first sermon on Wednesday night, which was on the subject of Backsliding. He said that he still believes in an old-fashioned heaven and an old-fashioned hell, and intended to preach the good old doctrine without the frills, that some modern evangelists use. On Thursday evening Dr. Porter preached a strong sermon on Sin and Friday morning his subject was Zeal.

On Friday evening he will speak on the subject: Tramps; Saturday morning his subject will be Seeing Christ; Sunday morning his subject will be Love.
